Here It Comes: "The New Wave"
The Federal Law & New GA Rules and Regs
Tying It All Together to Create a Defensible IEP

With Brenda Stancil

Brenda Stancil is a special education consultant with Harben & Hartley Law Firm. She joined the firm in 2005 after retiring from 30+ years as an educator. Early in her career, she was a general and special education teacher. Later she became an itinerate teacher for students with visual impairments and served as Coordinator of Northeast Georgia GLRS where she developed and coordinated ongoing training programs for teachers, parents and administrators.

Join us to learn everything and more about IEPs and how to effectively plan for students' education!

Friday October 12th, 2007

This workshop will include information that will help school personnel know the how, what and why of defensible IEP development. Questions will be answered about documentation process and procedures to properly execute and IEP meeting. Updates on the law and other legal issues will be addressed to help personnel understand the liabilities of inadequate IEPs. This training will benefit all school personnel in terms of knowledge, implementation and legality of IEPs.

Registration – 8:30am
Workshop - 9:30am until 2:30pm *lunch will be provided
